All hail the puppet master of Brookline

Theater. Saturday was World Day of Puppetry, so Metro caught up with celebrated local puppeteer "Uncle Nappy."

In an age of digital entertainment, puppet shows seem quaint, a relic from an earlier time, but the Puppet Showplace Theatre in Brookline is pulling strings to keep the art form alive.

Located in an old brownstone directly across from the Brookline Village T stop, the theater is small and cozy, with benches set up, almost church-like, but with room for children to roam.

The theater caters to all kinds of puppets and audiences, large or small, young or old. Children's shows are often rowdy, bustling with wobbly, wide-eyed, excited toddlers, but nevertheless always entertaining.

Founded by Mary Churchill in 1975, this year is the theater's 40th anniversary. They are celebrating with more than 300 shows from resident puppeteers as well as guests.

"We really are the center for puppetry in New England," says communication director and puppeteer Brenda Huggins. "Other companies are doing theater, but we are special in that we only do puppets."

The theater has shows, classes and workshops all year-round with times and performances varying depending on the time of year. "We do a lot in the summer," Huggins said. "We have puppet playtime, field trips and even camps."

Though the theater is mainly oriented toward kids, it has shows for every age. Adults can enjoy "Slams," which are theatrical mini-plays that use — or sometimes abuse — puppets for all or part of the drama.

The theater employs a few "resident puppeteers," but many of its shows are put on by traveling puppeteers and companies.

New England native Jim "Uncle Nappy" Napolitano is one such puppeteer.

Dubbed one of America's most-beloved shadow puppeteers, and a graduate of the University of Connecticut's Puppet Arts program, he has toured all over the country for the past 20 years.

Originally an acting major, he fell in love with puppetry while in his sophomore year.

Napolitano says he likes puppetry because it is more engaging than traditional theater.

"In puppetry, you can be everything, every part of the show," said Napolitano — who is known for interacting with the audience — is a favorite among both children and their parents.

Napolitano's most recent show at the Showplace even had a disclaimer for the parents: "Don't get mad at me, get mad at the French," when referring to a short tale of a pooping elephant.

He believes part of his success is aiming to please the entire audience. "I try and entertain the adults, if a big person is taking their little person to the show, they shouldn't be bored."

Napolitano travels every where from assisted living facilities to libraries to camps, from Connecticut to Ottawa, Canada.

"You might not eat steak and lobster every night," Napolitano said. "But if you hustle, you can make it."

Yetsy. Boston Yeti selling swag to benefit animals at the MSPCA

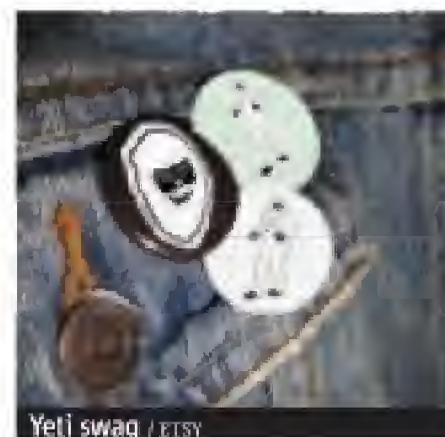

The anonymous man under The Boston Yeti costume is reportedly selling merchandise to help his fellow furry friends.

Proceeds from the sale of stickers, buttons and bookmarks bearing the Yeti's likeness will benefit the MSPCA's Angell Animal Medical Center in Boston, the Associated Press reported. He is selling the swag on Etsy.com.

The Yeti gained notoriety and a strong social media following this past winter after popping up during blizzards and helping residents dig out their cars.

The Yeti told The Associated Press in an email: "I can think of no better way to spin one's popularity than for the benefit of animals in need."

Poll

52 percent of residents oppose 2024 Olympic bid

The majority of Boston-area residents now oppose the U.S. bid to have the city host the 2024 Olympic Games, amid growing concern that taxpayers would be stuck with the bill, according to a poll released on Friday.

The poll, conducted by the MassInc Polling Group, found that 52 percent of residents oppose the idea of having the Summer Games in and around eastern Massachusetts.

Polls conducted in February found that 46 percent opposed the idea. In January, just 33 percent opposed it. Some 65 percent of the 504 registered voters polled from March 16-18 said they believed taxpayer funds would be required to pay for the Games, which organizers have estimated will cost about $9.5 billion. City tackles mounds of snow trash Clean up. Officials want more public works funding to speed up efforts.

After an historic 108.6 inches of snowfall in Boston this winter, the melting snow has revealed something disturbing to residents: lots and lots of trash.

"After this unparalleled and unprecedented storm, the city is very dirty, and we have to clean it up," Councilor Matt O'Malley said at a recent public hearing on how the city should handle the debris cleanup.

Since the snowfall began, trash collection has been down 11 percent and the city has spent more than $40 million on snow removal, according to Interim Public Works Commissioner Michael Dennehy.

Dennehy told councilors that since nightly street sweeping crews began working last Tuesday, more than 200 tons of trash has been collected.

That's more than 400,000 pounds.

O'Malley convened the hearing with officials in charge of other major city services in order to develop strategies to combat the increasing problem.

Officials agreed to extend "Boston Shines," the citywide volunteer cleanup program, throughout the months of April and May.

Firefighters battle two-alarm blaze that injures one, displaces four Boston firefighters knocked out a wind-driven 2-alarm blaze on Manthorne Road in West Roxbury on Sunday afternoon.

Smoke was pouring from the windows of the home, according to a tweet from the Boston Fire Department. The fire had spread from the second floor to the attic of the two-family home, officials said.

Four residents were displaced, and one was injured. METRO

Seven skiers hurt in Sugarloaf lift malfunction

Seven people were injured on Saturday when a ski lift at Maine's popular Sugarloaf Mountain Resort malfunctioned, sending chairs rolling back on their cable, officials said.

The malfunction happened as 230 people were being hoisted up the mountain in western Maine, Sugarloaf said in a news release.

Three of those injured required hospitalization for non-life-threatening injuries. Sugarloaf said it is investigating the incident.

Florida mother skips hearing after charged with killing her children

Police. They have not said how the children were killed except to say they were not stabbed, sliced or shot.

A Florida mother waived her right to attend a first court hearing on Sunday to face charges of murdering two of her young children and attempting to murder her 5-month-old baby, an official at Brevard County Detention Center said.

Jessica Lacey McCarty, 33, of Palm Bay, was represented by a public defender, with a judge setting arraignment for April 21, the official said.

McCarty was ordered held without bond and remains under medical watch at Brevard County Detention Center.

The medical examiner's office on Sunday were to perform autopsies on McCarty's two older children, ages 7 and 6, to determine how they died.

McCarty's 5-month-old baby remains in critical condition in an Orlando hospital, officials said.

Police said they were still putting together the sequence of events and added that investigators from the Department of Children and Families had visited McCarty in the past.

Officers went to McCarty's home Friday after receiving two emergency calls, one from a woman who claimed to have killed her children, police said in a news release on Saturday.

When police arrived, they found McCarty in front of the house, holding a butcher's knife in her hand and suffering from minor injuries.

Inside the home, officers found three unresponsive children.

A 7-year-old girl named Laci and her 6-year-old brother Philip were pronounced dead at a nearby hospital, police said. REUTERS

5 things you need to know

Sen. Ted Cruz to announce 2016 bid

Texas Sen. Ted Cruz, a conservative firebrand who has frequently clashed with leaders of his Republican Party, will announce on Monday that he plans to run for president, an aide said.

Cruz will be the first major figure from either party to announce his candidacy for the 2016 election when he speaks at Liberty University, an evangelical Christian school in Virginia. Two other prominent Republican senators, Rand Paul of Kentucky and Marco Rubio of Florida, are expected to reveal their plans in coming weeks.

Cruz, 44, has built a reputation as an unyielding advocate for conservative principles in his two years in the Senate.

He pushed his party to force a government shutdown in 2013 in an unsuccessful effort to deny funding to President Barack Obama's Affordable Care Act, drawing the disapproval of Republican leaders in Washington and praise from the grassroots Tea Party movement.

As a presidential candidate, Cruz is likely to stake out a position on his party's far-right wing.

In recent weeks, he has told audiences to look closely at the actions of Republican candidates who say they stick up for conservative principles.

Confederate flag plate debate reaches Supreme Court

The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday will take up a free speech case on whether Texas was wrong in rejecting a specialty vehicle license plate displaying the Confederate flag — to some an emblem of Southern pride and to others a symbol of racism.

The justices will hear a one-hour oral argument in a case that raises the issue of how states can allow or reject politically divisive messages on license plates without violating free speech rights. States can generate revenue by allowing groups to propose specialty plates that people then pay a fee to put on their vehicle.

US taking steps to fix technical error with Boeing GPS satellites

The Air Force on Sunday said it is working to resolve a technical error that affects some Boeing GPS satellites, although it did not hurt the accuracy of GPS signals received by users.

Air Force Space Command said the glitch affected the "indexing" of some GPS messages from a type of satellite known as IIF, which affects how messages are sorted and stored.

The issue came to light in recent days, but a close examination of archive data showed the problem had gone unnoticed since 2013. REUTERS

McCain to Obama: Get over your temper tantrum

Sen. John McCain accused President Barack Obama of throwing a "temper tantrum" over comments by Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, adding to the conflict between the White House and the Republican-dominated Congress over Israel.

McCain, asked on CNN's "State of the Union" if U.S.-Israel relations were at a dangerous point, said, "I think that's up to the president of the United States."

Obama's relationship with Netanyahu was strained further by comments Netanyahu made in the closing moments of his successful campaign.

Attacker with machete at New Orleans airport dies

The machete-wielding man who was shot by police when he attacked security agents at a New Orleans airport on Friday has died in a hospital, police said on Saturday.

Richard White, 63, was carrying six homemade explosives when he attacked agents at the airport with wasp-killing spray and a machete. He had a history of mental illness, officials said.

"No one at this point in time has any notion of what triggered this behavior," Jefferson Parish Sheriff Newell Normand said at a news conference earlier on Saturday. REUTERS

I'm running an order back to the cook when Ms. Diaz tells me I can leave and hands me a twenty, a bonus for working past my shift. I stuff it into my pocket and make my way out to the car. The extra cash is nice, but now I'm late picking up Sophie. We're supposed to go to the craft festival, but now she's waiting for me, pouting on the front steps. She normally wouldn't care if I'm late, but she's upset that I'm leaving for college soon. She thinks I don't get it, but I do. I'm her big brother, and even though she's a lot younger, we're close. She's mad, but as soon as I give her the twenty, she cracks a smile. I tell her she can have it on two conditions: we buy something together and the pouting stops.

Ryan Gosling and Eva Mendes, pro-sweatpants

Eva Mendes came under fire last week for joking that sweatpants are the "No. 1 cause of divorce in America," because obviously we've exhausted all other topics over which to get outraged. To quell the public indignation, Mendes and partner Ryan Gosling struck out on social media to assure all of their commitment to dressing for comfort, not style. First, Mendes posted an affectionate ode to her "favorite pair of sweatpants" on Instagram, apologizing for forsaking them. "Everyone knows orange Crocs are the

No. 1 cause of divorce."

Then Gosling chimed in with some well-earned wisdom for others about how to live in polite society. "Word to the wise. Don't joke about sweatpants or North Korea. Real hot button issues. Trust me," he tweeted. "Obviously sweatpants thing was a joke. Wearing them now. That's right, tweeting in sweatpants. Rats! Said too much! You win again Twitter." Personally, I'd wager that a lack of a sense of humor is the bigger threat to happiness. So lighten up, everybody.

Zoe Saldana not up for Dolce and Gabbana boycott

Sorry, Elton John. Zoe Saldana will not be joining your boycott of designers Dolce and Gabbana over their comments about gay and lesbian parents having "synthetic" children. "That would be the stupidist thing if it affected my fashion choice," she tells E! News at the GLAAD Media Awards. "Obviously it caused some sensitivity, but then again if you continue to follow the news, you see they all kind of hugged it out, so why are they making a big deal about it?" I ... don't really have an answer for that, ma'am.

Life on the road is tough.

Is this the end of One Direction?

There might be trouble in teen pop paradise, as One Direction's Zayn Malik has been sent home early from the band's current tour. Malik is said to be "stressed," though some worry this might be a sign of greater trouble for the group. "A lot of people in their camp fear that this is the beginning of the end for One Direction," a source tells Radar. "The higher-ups ordered Malik to take a break because there are concerns for his well-being. Malik's management is livid right now, but they are also very sympathetic to his situation. He is in bad shape, which is the real reason he went home to London."

Review

BØRNS is getting groovy.

MICHAEL BUCKNER

BØRNS

BØRNS' four-song EP "Candy" has only been out for four months, but the band's single "Electric Love" is gaining momentum and has been highlighted on Spotify and SiriusXM radio. The band was a keynote at YouTube's discover showcase last Thursday, playing their full EP plus a new song, "American Money," which they dedicated to "all the strippers in the audience." As their EP title suggests, their sound is sweet and sugary — an airy blend of glam rock and electronica.

The '70s influence is apparent not only in the music, but in frontman Damon Campbell's proclivity for the word "groovy." EL

Things to know about James Bay

SXSW. Early reviews are in — this 24-year-old British crooner is the one to watch.

If you haven't heard of James Bay yet, get ready for it — soon, his name will be everywhere. The singer-songwriter's debut album, "Chaos and the Calm," comes out today and is expected to debut at number one in the U.K. Why is he such a big deal? Here's what you need to know:

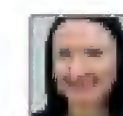

James Bay / GETTY IMAGES

1 He's following in some pretty big footsteps. He might not be getting radio play yet, but that didn't stop him from collecting the 2015 Critic's Choice Award at The Brits last month. For newcomers, this is the award to win, as it is widely known to predict future success. Adele won the first Critic's Choice Award in 2008, and Sam Smith and Ellie Goulding are both past recipients, too.

2 His music is already getting the movie treatment. According to The Hollywood Reporter, Bay will be singing the theme song for the next James Bond movie, "Spectre," which also sets him on the path Adele took.

3 He's in Taylor Swift's inner circle. Bay is close with Swift and Swift's guy bestie, Ed Sheeran, but not because he pursued them: Both musicians actually reached out to him. Swift first saw Bay when he was touring with Hozier and couldn't resist telling him she's a fan. And Sheeran spotted Bay at The Brits and broke away from reporters to tell Bay that he loved "Hold Back The River."

Miley shows up at SXSW

Whatever is up with those pictures of Miley Cyrus' boyfriend Patrick Schwarzenegger and another girl, Cyrus is not sitting around pouting. Instead, the pop star flew to SXSW to give a surprise performance with hip-hop duo Rae Sremmurd and rapper Mike Will Made It.

Cyrus stunned the crowd by walking onstage for her part of "23." EL

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20
Let your personal life be your focus for the moment. Enjoy the company of someone who inspires or motivates you to step outside your comfort zone.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21
Your lack of vigor will deter others from including you in their plans. Cheer up and become the life of the party instead of being left out. Reconnect with a pal.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20
Your ingenuity and energy will help you gain some money. Get together with your financial adviser and discuss ways to make extra cash through investments or savings accounts.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22
Share your compassionate nature with the world. Go ahead and join an organization that mirrors your beliefs. You will find that your efforts will make a difference.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22
No one will match your competitive skill. Don't waste time trying to convince others to join you; it's time to take the plunge, make things happen and enjoy the rewards.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22
Intriguing and stimulating conversations will result as you become more involved in activities or organizations that appeal to your interests. Check out what's available in your community.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22
Don't follow the crowd when it comes to financial decisions. Every situation is unique, and you must take your own requirements into account if you want to be successful.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21
Your vivid imagination will cause a rift between you and a close friend or family member. If there is something troubling you, speak up and see what transpires.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21
It's worth your while to get to know your peers or co-workers better. Working as a team will be effective if you compare ideas on how to make improvements in the workplace.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20
A stable, conservative approach will be your best course of action today. Stick with tried-and-true methods and leave the unproven ideas to one side.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18
The people you live with will get on your nerves if you spend too much time at home. Opt for a change in scenery. Get out with some friends.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20
Travel and adventure will lead to appealing destinations. Careful planning will enable you to take a trip that will inspire you to try new things.

Kendall Jenner handling it well

Re: 'Kendall Jenner opens up about Bruce Jenner' (Metro, March 19) In this day and age, it's hard to remember that celebrities are people just like the rest of us. Metro posted an article about Kendall Jenner comparing her father's sex change operation to getting a new pair of shoes. Let's forget the fact that she is a public figure for once and remember that this is a 19-year-old girl trying to come to grips with the fact that her dear old dad is becoming a woman. With all due respect to the transgender community, I could only imagine how I would react to a situation like that. Especially if I were still a teenager! For the record, I could care less about the Kardashians, but I applaud Kendall for the way she is handling this. So let the backlash begin on me in 3 ... 2 ... 1...

Safe jerseys numerous

to buy in Philly?' (Metro.us, March 20) Evan Macy's article on what jerseys are "safe" to buy in Philly is preposterous. If he himself is a true fan, he should also be aware of the oft-repeated mantra: "You play for the crest on the front, not the name on the back." Safe? Safe from what? Looking ridiculous? Because, "OMG he's not on the team anymore?" A true fan will support his team no matter what, and will support their favorite players no matter where they play. As lifetime Philly sports fan and an avid jersey collector (101 and counting, across six sports, and almost all from Philly teams and their affiliates), I know that not every true fan can afford to pay anywhere from $70-$200 for a jersey. The recent massive turnover has made numerous jerseys available at a much more reasonable price, and provided the player didn't leave on bad terms (Werth, T.O., etc.), most fans have no issue buying a jersey of a defunct player.

BOSTON'S BEST PARTIER

There was a period in this town's history where stories like Wade Boggs drinking 64 beers on a cross-country flight were legend and nothing more. Of course, had the iPhone existed in 1989, there's no doubt Mike Greenwell or Marty Barrett would have documented the feat.

Which current Boston athlete is the most Boggs-onian? Who is the biggest ham in front of a cell phone camera? Who would be the best to party with? We give you the odds:

Rob Gronkowski (6-1)

Gronk is built to drink, standing at 6-foot-6 and weighing in at 265 pounds and in most off-seasons there's a new picture of him with a porn star or at a Vegas-style swimming pool popping up every other week. Strangely, this off-season has been relatively quiet for the tight end. For every "Grind time with DJ no shirt @ChrisGronkowski! #Grind1st #EarnToPlay" tweet we get in 2015 from Gronk, there's a boring "straight chilling and relaxing" tweet the next day. Is the 25-year-old Gronkowski finally growing up? Say it ain't so.

Julian Edelman (9-1)

Edelman not only had that Tinder episode following the Pats' Super Bowl win, but he also showed up to a Harvard party (yes, Harvard) with an 8 to 1 girl:boy ratio. (There were pictures). Then, earlier this month, Edelman and the aforementioned Gronkowski got into something of a Twitter beef when Gronk was in L.A. (where Edelman lives during the off-season). Edelman tweeted to Gronk at 12:45 p.m. on March 12: "@RobGronkowski I love how you're in LA and I haven't seen you... #smh #wherethebeef #lused-toknowgronk" Gronk replied on March 13 at 4:10 a.m.: "@edelman u call me out this morning, then

Rob Gronkowski had the second-best performance in February's Patriots parade, but the day belonged to Julian Edelman. / GETTY IMAGES

MIKE NAPOLI

I invite ur fake ass out and u make up excuses cause you won't pay for half the bill." While Edelman deserves party points for actually living in LA in the off-season, Gronkowski wins this exchange for openly stating that during the off-season "12:45 p.m." classifies as "the morning," and for getting this jab in at 4:10 a.m..

Mike Napoli (12-1)

Napoli was the Edelman of the Red Sox' 2013 World Series celebration, famously walking around the streets of Boston late night with his shirt off and a cigarette dangling from his mouth.

After the Patriots won, he tweeted out, "Sudden urge to rampage down Boylston!!! Who is with me?"

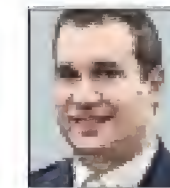

Napoli was once linked to porn star Rachel Starr, and in one of the pornographic photos that were leaked from teammate Clay Buchholz's phone last fall, what was believed to be Napoli's hand appeared groping some blonde woman's bare bum. Old-fashioned fun.

Any Bruins player (14-1)

The Bruins — and hockey players in general — don't really count in this discussion because they're expected to dominate parties. Would it surprise anyone if Zdeno Chara once downed 64 beers on a direct flight from Hanscom Air Force Base to Calgary? He just wouldn't brag about it.

Any Celtics player (100-1)

Larry Bird ain't walking through that door, nor is a case of Bud Heavy's with his name on it. We don't really know anyone on the 2014-15 Celtics too well, mostly because 11 of their 12 players arrived on the scene last week. But teams often take on the personality of their head coach and Brad Stevens once said that the hardest thing he drinks is Canada Dry. Seriously.

The last thing you need is KNEE PAIN

What you might need are options.

Damaged cartilage has a limited ability to repair or restore itself.

A Phase 3 clinical trial is looking for candidates with certain knee cartilage injuries to evaluate NeoCart[®], an investigational cartilage tissue implant made from a patient's own cells.

All study-related surgical procedures, office visits, and some rehabilitation costs will be paid by the trial sponsor.

All enrolled patients receive treatment

If you qualify and are enrolled, you will be randomly selected to receive one of the following surgical treatments:

NeoCart[®] Implant
2 out of 3

Microfracture procedure
1 out of 3

To qualify for this trial, you must:

- ✓ Be 18 to 55 years old
- ✓ Provide informed consent
- ✓ Suffer from pain in one knee and be physician-diagnosed with a cartilage injury
- ✓ Be recommended by a physician for microfracture surgery

NEOCART[®]
Autologous Engineered Neocartilage
